

Facing severe budget cuts, MSSD and KDES receive Congressional support

In the face of a federal budget proposal calling for a $10 million cut in the fiscal year 1985 operating budget of MSSD and KDES, Gallaudet has received rallying Congressional support. Spearheaded by David Bonior (D-MI), a member of the College's Board of Trustees, a number of initiatives on behalf of the College have been introduced.

Support for the College was registered almost immediately after the Office of Management and the Budget set forth a proposal which would require Gallaudet to charge local school districts and the families of hearing-impaired children for educational expenses incurred by those students attending MSSD and KDES. College officials have argued that passage of such legislation would cause a drastic drop in enrollment, thereby preventing the schools from functioning as true demonstration schools.

Many members of Congress agreed and have pledged their support.

In a letter to President Reagan, five congressmen wrote that approval of the legislation requiring chargebacks to local jurisdictions would "ring a death knell for these demonstration programs; and . . . the significant investment in the past, current and future development of effective and widely used instructional programs for deaf children will be substantially reduced." That letter was co-signed by Bonior, Walter Fauntroy (D-DC), Austin J. Murphy (D-PA), chairman of the Subcommittee on Select Education, Larry J. Hopkins (R-KY), and Carl D. Perkins (D-KY). Perkins is chairman of the Education and Labor Committee, which must approve any changes in the legislation as it now stands.

In addition, Rep. Jamie Whitten (D-MS), chairman of the full House Appropriations Committee, Rep. William Natcher (D-KY), chairman of the Subcommittee on Appropriations, and Rep. Ron Packard (R-CA), who, with Bonior, represents Congress on Gallaudet's Board, gave their support to the letter's position.

Moreover, Sen. Pete Domenici (R-NM) has told Gallaudet students that when the legislation comes up for review in the Senate he will do what he can to help the College.

As well as drafting the letter to President Reagan, Bonior addressed the House of Representatives earlier this month, questioning the fairness of the proposed legislation. "To families struggling desperately to raise a handicapped child, the administration says, 'Find, somewhere, $5,000 or the school door is closed.' To local school districts struggling to meet past budget cuts, the administration says, 'Pay $6,000 for each student who attends these schools.'"

"Is this fairness? Are these the priorities of the American people?" Bonior queried.

According to Sue Ellis, director of External Affairs for the College, Congressional support cuts across party lines. "Both Republicans and Democrats are concerned about the situation. When the legislation (establishing MSSD and KDES as demonstration schools) was approved, the support was overwhelming bi-partisan and it has continued to enjoy bi-partisan support."

Ellis said she has received pledges of support from members of Congress "too numerous to name all" and is cautiously optimistic about the chargeback proposal's demise since it doesn't have the support of the committee chairmen who have jurisdiction over the legislation. However, she expressed concern over the $10 million slashed from the budget.

"Even if the legislation is not passed, we must restore the funds to the

Chapel Hall undergoes restoration

He remembers looking at the main room at Chapel Hall and thinking of its possibilities. "The room looked shabby—the paint had deteriorated and the plaster was in need of repair. It could be an elegant and stately room," he said.

Howard Cihak, a 1971 graduate of Gallaudet and the director of the Physical Plant, made those observations in the late 1960s. Now some 15 years later, he is seeing his vision come to pass.

"When this room is finished and restored, it could be used for formal receptions and meetings, and could rival the best there is at any university in the area," Cihak stated.

The main area and adjoining hallways of Chapel Hall are in the midst of restoration work, an effort begun early this year and the bulk of which Cihak hopes will be completed by the end of March.

Members of the College's Maintenance and Operations staff are doing all of the work in the building, with the exception of cleaning the stone and repairing the roof. That work was contracted out.

With the help of old photographs, Cihak's department is attempting to make the room appear as it did in the 1880s. Erected between 1867 and 1871, Chapel Hall was designated a national historic landmark by the National Park Service and is the oldest building on campus today.

"We're trying to use original materials or look-alikes to what was used before rather than modern materials. It gives character and ambiance to a building 113 years old. The only concession to modernization will be the wall-to-wall carpeting," Cihak noted.

Most of the necessary work consists of painting and restoring plaster, both in the main room and adjoining hallways. New carpeting will be installed and the stained glass windows have been cleaned. The stone arch over the stage area will be bleached in an effort to remove iron streaks which have bled through the stone and the marble floor in the hallway by the Alumni/Public Relations Office will be polished.

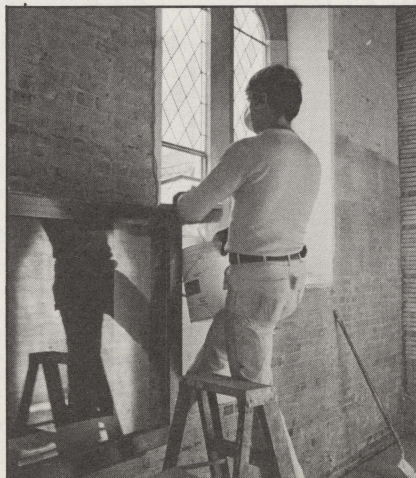

When the work is completed, some subtle and not so subtle changes will be noticeable in the main room of the building. As it was in the 1880s, the six and one-half foot high wainscot will be painted in two colors rather than one, with the raised portions a lighter color and the inner portions a darker color. However, the inner portions will probably not be nearly as dark a shade of brown as they are now.

The top of the walls near the ceiling—now with the elaborate wall patterns tinted in dark maroon, brown and green—might be painted yellow, as the rest of the walls below. The stone by the building's windows is visibly two-

Workshops ready participants for Close Up program

The Close Up Foundation, a private group that brings 18,000 high school students to Washington every year for seminars on government, kicked off its 1984 program for hearing impaired students with workshops at MSSD on Feb. 10.

David Harrington, Close Up program administrator, and 14 Close Up instructors met with MSSD students and social studies faculty members to learn about deafness, how to work effectively with an interpreter and what instructional techniques work best with a mixed group of deaf and hearing students.

"Basically, we showed them what they need to change in their teaching approach to accommodate deaf students," said MSSD instructor Linda McCarty.

MSSD has been active in the program for eight years and in that time has provided Close Up with technical advice and assistance in adapting its program for deaf students. "We helped edit all their materials for hearing-impaired students," McCarty said. "And we did some videotaping of signs commonly used in Washington to describe various aspects of government frequently used during the Close Up week."

Library Bits & Pieces

More on taxes

By C. Burnelle McIntyre Ray

Last week's Serendipity column focused on various tax materials available from the IRS. The library also has materials that may help you as an educator or taxpayer looking for all possible deductions. Those materials follow.

Take It Off! 2363 Tax Deductions Most People Overlook (Robert S. Holzman): This guide is arranged like a dictionary. For those who want a clear understanding of deductibles in concise language, this is your book. Even if you cannot take advantage of a specific deduction, you can have a better understanding of what the deductible means. Holzman's guide is not a "step by step," "how to do it" source. There are no samples of forms and no dollar figures to examine. However, examples of situations are given. In addition, each deductible named has an identifying footnote number which leads to the reference to the deduction itself. For example, the reference may be the IRS Code, the Treasury Regulations or a revenue ruling. Some of the deductibles listed include study for advanced degree, expenses of deaf persons, employee awards, reprints and supplies for one's profession and travel. If you don't understand the deductible listed on your income tax return form, you may want to look it up in Take It Off! The 1984 Tax Guide for College Teachers and Other College Personnel (Academic Information Service, Inc.): This source is designed to keep college teachers informed about the latest tax laws and rulings that apply to them. As in other editions, the new changes for the 1983 income tax returns are highlighted. Explanations of terms, examples of situations and sample forms are included. The first chapter covers very basic information that will help all taxpayers. Other chapters focus on deductibles that may be of specific interest to teachers such as academic work during leave of absence, sabbatical and summer grants, day care, educational expenses and research expenses.

NEA 1983 Federal Income Tax Guide for Teachers (National Education Association): This guide is similar in content to the 1984 Tax Guide for College Teachers. You may want to use it as a supplement to the other two sources.

Both Take It Off! and the NEA guide are already on the reserve shelves at the library. The 1984 Tax Guide for College Teachers is on order and should be in the library soon. Look for these income tax sources at the Central Desk.

Campus receives letter requesting feedback

A representative of Hanna-Barbera Productions has written to the Alumni/Public Relations Office concerning the use of sign language on the television show, "The Smurfs." Patsy Cameron, story editor of "The Smurfs," noted that letters of support from educators would "have a great influence" on the use of sign language in the program.

Cameron referred to the Dec. 24,

1983 special, "Smurfing in Sign Language." That episode featured Laconia, a mute wood elf who used sign language.

Anyone interested in writing letters of support should write to Phyllis Tucker Vinson, vice president of Children's Programming, NBC, 3000 West Alameda Boulevard, Hollywood, CA 90068.

Special project grants

The Health Resources and Services Administration has announced that $13.7 million is available for special projects on maternal and child health research, training, genetic disease testing, counseling and information projects, and hemophilia diagnostic and treatment centers.

Of the $13.7 million available, approximately $3.1 million will be allocated for genetics, $300,000 for hemophilia, $1.8 million for research, $2.3 million for training and $6.2 million for special projects. Training grants can only be targeted to institutions of higher education, while research grants can only be awarded to such institutions or to non-profit organizations engaged in relevant research.

For further information, please contact the Office of Sponsored Research or Office of the Director, Division of Maternal and Child Health, Bureau of Health Care Delivery and Assistance, Room 6-05, Parklawn Building, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 02857, 443-2170.

Cognition symposium deadline nears

The deadline to register for the International Symposium on Cognition, Education and Deafness is about one month away. Persons interested in participating in the four-day symposium must register by March 31.

The symposium, scheduled for June 5-8 at Gallaudet, is sponsored jointly by the Division of Research, the Division of Academic Affairs, the School of Education and Human Services and the Pre-College Division.

Twenty-eight papers have been accepted and will be printed and distributed to all symposium registrants before the meeting begins. Topics of the papers deal with cognitive style of hearing impaired students, ways to improve cognitive performance of deaf children, reading and cognitive performance of hearing impaired learners and how to train teachers of hearing impaired students to enhance the students' thinking skills. In addition, a variety of issues related to appropriate testing and measurement of the cognitive levels of deaf persons will be examined.

A special plenary session at the symposium will feature Irving Sigel of Educational Testing Service in Princeton, NJ. Sigel, a recognized authority on cognition, will attend each session of the symposium and then present a summarizing lecture.

To register for the symposium leave a message for David Martin in the Department of Education at x5400 (voice and TDD).

budget. The support is good, but we have to translate that into real action in the appropriations process," Ellis said. "The money won't be magically restored. We have to make that happen."

To that end, the College is asking parents, students and organizations serving deaf persons to write to Reagan and their congressmen. Interim President Jerry C. Lee sent a letter to Reagan urging that he reconsider the budget proposal and restore the funds so that students at MSSD and KDES "can continue to benefit from exemplary educational services that might otherwise be unavailable."

"To deny these children this option—particularly when the MSSD and KDES programs help to offer cost effective nationwide support for educators in need of effective educational materials for the hearing impaired—is to deny all deaf children their right to the most appropriate education," Lee wrote in his Feb. 7 letter.

March 15 colloquium set

Boyce Williams, Powrie Vaux Doctor Chair of Deaf Studies, will speak at the Graduate School Colloquium Thursday, March 15 at 4 p.m. at Ely Center.

Williams' presentation is entitled "Thirty-eight Years After: The Impact of Vocational Rehabilitation on the Deaf Community." The presentation will be followed by a question and answer period and an informal reception.

At the same time, the national press has started covering the budget story as it affects Gallaudet, with a front page story appearing in the Feb. 9 edition of the Washington Post and coverage in other newspapers such as the Detroit Free Press as well as broadcast coverage.

Welcome to the world of Wanda Banks, information line operator at Gallaudet. As the College's switchboard operator, she handles an average of 150 calls a day, 750 calls a week and about 30,000 calls each year requesting information and transfers to various departments.

The campus switchboard is a Dimension PBX Attendant Console system and has the capability of connecting callers with every extension on both campuses. The system is located in the Alumni/Public Relations Office in Chapel Hall and handles both voice and TDD calls.

About 25 percent of the calls taken at the switchboard are calls from Gallaudet employees requesting information, often times trying to get an outside operator. However, campus phones are set up in such a way that the only way to get an outside operator is to use a pay telephone on campus.

At other times, employees call the switchboard to obtain numbers listed in the campus directory. Banks requests that employees check the campus directory first and asks new employees not listed in the directory to let her know their numbers to help speed the process of connecting calls.

And because of the number of calls concerning workshops and seminars on campus, Banks said it helps if departments let her know in advance what events they are planning and where they will be held. "I've gotten a lot of calls asking where such-and-such a workshop is. The people don't know who's sponsoring it or where it is. There have been emergency situations where it's been hard to place the call to the right department," she stated.

Because of the number of calls handled each day, it is impossible for Banks to take messages for various campus departments although she is requested to do so regularly.

Black History Month activities held

February is Black History Month, and a number of activities have been scheduled at both the Kendall Green and Northwest campuses.

A lecture series has been held throughout the month at the Northwest Campus, with the next lecture scheduled for Feb. 21 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Main Building cafeteria. James Woodward, an associate professor of Linguistics, will speak on "Black Southern Signing."

On Feb. 23, David DeLorenzo, archivist/Special Collections librarian, will discuss "Black Deaf Students at Gallaudet College: 1857-1956." DeLorenzo will speak from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Main Building Cafeteria.

A discussion entitled "Sickle Cell Anemia" will be presented Feb. 28 by Judy Coryell, a nurse practitioner. That discussion will also be held from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Main Building Cafeteria.

The Intercultural Relations Committee at the Northwest Campus and the College's Equal Employment Opportunity Office will sponsor a program celebrating Black History Month Feb. 29 at 7:30 p.m. at the Northwest Campus Cafeteria. The guest lecturer will be Ernest Hairston, co-author of "Black and Deaf in America: Are We That Different?" Following the program, a reception will be held and Hairston will autograph books.

At Kendall Green, activities have been held at MSSD and KDES. Upcoming events include a Black History Program at MSSD Feb. 24 from 9 to 10:30 a.m. Students will be participating in the program and Ernest Hairston will be the guest speaker.

At KDES, a faculty and staff potluck lunch is planned for Feb. 21, during which time employees are encouraged to bring African dishes. And on Feb. 22 and 23 at 10 a.m. the captioned version of "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman" will be shown in two parts on Cable Channel 18.

Congress, the Executive Branch and also meet the press. Small and large group discussions focus on real life issues and also on decision making in hypothetical matters.

MSSD's delegation of 17 students will spend their week of scrutinizing the federal government March 18-24, one of four weeks set aside for hearing impaired students to be mainstreamed with their hearing peers.

"They must stay in the hotel, just like the out-of-town students," McCarty said. "They room with hearing room-mates. It's a total mainstream experience."

Janice Strickland, MSSD social studies instructor, will accompany the group this year and will participate in seminars designed for teachers.

"The kids usually get to meet their congressmen and this year, we hope to be able to start some discussions of the Pre-College budget question," Strickland said.

During the four weeks of Close Up's hearing impaired program, Barbara Krebs, the project coordinator, expects 280 deaf students representing 47 different schools. They come to Washington from mainstream programs and schools for the deaf as far away as the California schools at Fremont and Riverside. The R.J. Reynolds Company funds the program for hearing impaired students. MSSD students raise money in a variety of ways throughout the school year to cover individual costs of approximately $500 per student.

Recognition program entries accepted

Campus offices and units which have produced promotional publications and/or films or videotapes are invited to submit the works for the recognition program sponsored by the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE).

Entries should be submitted by Feb. 22 to Lolly Gilbert (Alumni/Public Relations at Chapel Hall) or Dan Skripkar (College Educational Resources at MSSD). Projects such as magazine publishing, newsletter publishing, individual publications and pieces, low-budget pieces, photocommunication, illustrations and electronic media programs can be submitted. Entrants must supply relevant data on the entry's purpose, cost and effectiveness.

CASE sponsors an awards program for member institutions each year. For the past few years, the Office of Alumni and Public Relations, working cooperatively with College Educational Resources, has coordinated campus units' entries to the CASE recognition program.

Any questions should be directed to Lolly Gilbert at x5858 (voice) or x5104 (TDD) or Dan Skripkar at x5811 (voice) or x5812 (TDD). A CASE Recognition '84 book is available in the Alumni/Public Relations Office for anyone interested in reviewing the CASE categories.

tone now, the result of a thorough cleaning job.

While the bulk of the work should be completed by the end of March there will be other areas—such as the main stage—where work will continue. A speaker's platform, as existed in the 1880s, will be constructed on the west wall across from the main stage.

No decisions have been made yet about the restoration of the main stage, the appearance of which was considerably different from what presently exists.

Art therapy exhibit opens at Ely Center

The field of art therapy is being introduced to Gallaudet in an exhibit, "Art Therapy—Then and Now."

The exhibit will be arranged by Catherine Moses of the Social Work Program and Sally Brucker of the Art Therapy Department of Saint Elizabeth's Hospital, with the assistance and support of the Student Union where the exhibit will be displayed from Feb. 23 through March 8. Ely Center hours are 7 a.m. to midnight Mondays through Saturdays and 4 to 10 p.m. Sundays.

Members of the Gallaudet community are invited to attend an opening ceremony and wine and cheese reception Feb. 23 from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. in the Ely Center atrium. At that time, Interim President Jerry Lee will officially open the exhibit and the film "Art Therapy" will be shown in the Art Exhibit Room.

The exhibit features a section of art work by patients in the Mental Health Program for the Deaf at Saint Elizabeth's Hospital. The exhibit includes 20 works created by patients working with an art therapist during the 1940s and 20 works created by patients currently involved in art therapy.

A self-portrait by a 27-year-old profoundly deaf woman hospitalized for five years with a diagnosis of schizophrenia. She described it as portraying "an angry baby no one would want."

The works have been captioned and collected as an educational exhibit documenting the diagnostic and curative aspects of art as an approach to psychotherapy in a hospital setting. The emphasis on visual expression in art therapy has made it a valuable tool in both assessment and treatment of deaf and hearing impaired psychiatric patients.

Kendall to host basketball tournament

Kendall Demonstration Elementary School will host the 1984 Girls/Boys Junior High School Basketball Tournament on Wednesday, Feb. 29. The games will be played at KDES and MSSD, and the following schools will be participating: KDES; the Pennsylvania School for the Deaf; the Maryland School for the Deaf in Frederick; and Town and Country Day School.

All girls' team games will be played at MSSD and boys' games at KDES, with the exception of the championship game which will be played at KDES.

The schedule for both the boys' and girls' games is as follows for both gyms: First game, 10:30 a.m.; second game, noon; and third game, 1:30 p.m. The girls' championship game will be played at 2:30 p.m. and the boys' championship game played at 4 p.m.

All games are free for students with identification cards. There will be a $1 charge for adults attending the championship game.

General campus announcements:

- A bus shuttle runs from KDES and MSSD to 'Ole Jim' during lunch hours. The shuttle arrives at KDES at 11:45 a.m., then stops at MSSD a few minutes later en route to 'Ole Jim.' The shuttle continues until 1 p.m. and makes no other stops along the way.

- The Department of Safety and Security provides escorts for female students, staff and faculty members who must travel alone on campus after dark. For a campus escort, call the campus police at x5555 (voice) and x5666 (TDD).

- A group tour of Thailand has been planned for next summer, during which time 15 people will travel and vacation on a 17-day tour from July 6 to 22. The trip will cost each participant approximately $1,800.

Tour arrangements and fees include round trip transportation from Seattle to Bangkok via Thai International Airlines, all in-country transportation and ground transfers, first class hotel accommodations and all tours and some meals.

Anyone interested in joining the tour should contact Boris Bogatz, School of Education and Human Services, at x5395.

KDES students show a creative streak

Seven students at Kendall Demonstration Elementary School have taken honors in the eastern division of the annual National Creative Arts Festival, sponsored by the Center on Deafness of Des Plaines, IL.

Competing against 120 other deaf children in their own age groups, the KDES students posted four first places, one second and one third in creative writing and talent.

The national competition will be held in Chicago April 27 and 28. Irving Turner, a 10-year-old SOP student won a first prize for his dance. Erica Harper, a 12-year-old Intermediate student placed first with a signed song and dance. Gregory Thomas, an 11-year-old Intermediate student, danced his way into a third place. All three will go to Chicago to compete with winners from other divisions.

Creative writing winners' compositions face one more judging before Chicago-bound contestants are determined. Entered in that competition are: Terry Giansanti, an 8-year-old Primary student who won a first place; Jennifer Yost, an 8-year old Primary student who won both a first and a third place; Dorian Yanke, a 7-year-old Intermediate student, who place third. Writers chosen to compete nationally in Chicago will be announced in March.

Winners in the national contest receive a ribbon and a cash award.

The contest is designed "to broaden the horizons" of deaf children, said Cecelia Strejc, program coordinator. "It gives them an opportunity to win something, to be proud of themselves," she added.

Eurhythmics instructor Pauline Spanbauer, Intermediate instructor Marianne Sasseen, SOP instructor Linda Mondschien, Primary instructor Melvia Nomeland, SOP instructor Sherry Lehr, Intermediate instructor Leslie Lewis, Primary instructor Jo Ann Mackinson, SOP instructor Sharon Stricklin and LRC supervisor Goldie Trboyevich all worked with the students in preparation for the contest.
